Dynamics of Confrontation Between Popular Mobilization and State In Jordan An Analytical social Conflict Approach

Abstract

This study Aims at analyzing the dynamics of confrontation between popular mobilization and state in Jordan from the perspective of an analytical social conflict. It also concentrated on the Factors that led to the emergence of popular mobilization and its Legitimacy and the variables that guided the peaceful confrontation between mobilization and state.

The study results showed that economic deprivation was the main factor behind the emergence of the popular mobilization, and the political demands were emerged when the state didn't achieve the economical Reforms, and the mobilization derives its legitimacy From its objective economical demands, the Arab revolutions and the concessions of the state which mean recognition of the Mobilization and its demands. Then the results showed that the mobilization was Fall back because of its lack of organization leadership and Ideology and the cleavages in the structure of national identity, but the conscious of the mobilization and its legitimacy may intense it again.

Besides, The results indicated that the confrontation was included dialectical Relationship between the peaceful orientation of the state toward the mobilizations and the peaceful orientation of the mobilization from the other hand. This dialectical relationship constituted moral treaty between the two partisans stand out as safty valve against violence and polarization. After that, the study showed some Factors which, sometimes, provoked violence such as: the partisans, usage of violent power, and arrestation of mobilization's activists. Then, the study showed that the confrontation was realistic, but didn't occur substantial change in the social structure, However, it escalated the level of freedom, Raised the power of the street, and obtained the state and the society more flexibility and democracy.

With regard to the theoretical approach, This study showed that the perspectives of analytical conflict are of complementarily nature, and it could be syenthesized to produce a new theoretical perspective.
